Proposed Merger of Almshouse Charities

The Trustees of Bristocke Almshouses and Augusta Wilder Almshouses are considering a possible merger of the two charities.

No decision has been made at this stage.

Why is a merger being considered?

Rising costs and increasing regulatory requirements have led the Trustees to explore whether working together could help secure the long-term sustainability of the almshouses.

Potential benefits may include:

- Greater financial stability
- More efficient use of charitable funds
- Stronger governance and administration
- Continued investment in almshouse homes

The charitable purposes of both almshouses would be preserved, and residents' rights would not be affected.
